Foreword

In modern society, the role of women in decision-making processes and their participation in missions to maintain and promote peace and security has become increasingly relevant over the past twenty years.

With the accession of our country to UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1325 on women, peace and security, we have clearly declared the significance we attach to issues related to equality between women and men in all areas of socio-political, economic and social life, including women’s participation in efforts to prevent and resolve conflicts, build and maintain international peace and security.

The elaboration of the first National Action Plan on Women, Peace and Security, for the period 2020-2025, is a proof of the fulfillment of the obligation undertaken by our country to implement Resolution 1325. The activities and measures outlined in the Plan are focused on four main areas, namely prevention, participation, protection and prioritization of the topics included in the WPS agenda. The implementation and monitoring of the plan is a shared responsibility of all responsible institutions, and a review of what has been achieved and what lies ahead will be initiated in the second half of 2022.

We thank everyone who was actively involved in its development, and especially the representatives of civil society, academia and the non-governmental sector. The established fruitful cooperation with Ireland, which shared its experience and expertise throughout the process, will remain valuable for us.

I am convinced that the National Action Plan adopted by the Government enriches the active policy of the Republic of Bulgaria in the field of human rights, in particular the rights of women and girls, and will complement the national efforts for the empowerment of women and their more active role in issues of peace and security.

I believe that the potential of women and girls can and must be used to achieve a better, more peaceful and safer society.
Introduction

The encouragement of the effective participation of women in the efforts to maintain and promote peace is a UN priority set out in the unanimously adopted UN Security Council Resolution 1325 of 31 October 2000 on women, peace and security. UNSCR 1325 is the first international document to state the direct link of the role of women to the prevention and resolution of conflicts and to peace-building processes. It emphasized the important role of women and girls, together with men and boys, in the prevention and resolution of conflicts, peace negotiations, peace-building and the post-conflict reconstruction and management.

For the purpose of achieving the goals of UNSCR 1325, in 2004, the UN Security Council urged States to adopt national plans on its implementation from the perspective of the existing global challenges in the attainment of sustainable peace and security and domestic challenges, such as the daily operations of law enforcement authorities, responses to crises and disasters, care of refugees, people fleeing conflict, migrants, trafficking in human beings, etc. This National Action Plan (NAP) should take into account the various aspects of gender equality in all spheres of the peace policy, including specific peace-building projects and programmes.

The NAP should provide guidance on the implementation of the UNSC resolutions concerning women, peace and security, identify priority goals and measures, and specify the institutions responsible and the timeframes for the implementation of the measures.
Women, Peace and Security Agenda

The commitments of the Republic of Bulgaria to the issues of women, peace and security build on the fundamental UNSCR 1325 (2000) on women, peace and security, as well as the subsequent nine UNSC resolutions. All these resolutions, taken together, make up the UN Women, Peace and Security Agenda.

UNSCR 1325
It was adopted in 2000 and it was the first resolution of the UN Security Council to tackle the disproportionate impact of armed conflicts on women and the importance of women’s involvement in conflict resolution, in political processes, and in post-conflict reconstruction.

UNSCR 1820
It was adopted in 2008 and focused on sexual violence during conflicts and the link between sexual violence as a tactic of war and the maintenance of international peace and security. It reinforced UNSCR 1325 by recognizing that sexual violence was often widespread and systematic practice that might impede the restoration of international peace and security.

UNSCR 1888
It was adopted in 2009 and underlined the importance of increased participation of women in mediation processes and decision-making processes with regard to conflict resolution and peace-building.

The Resolution called for a new structure of peacekeeping missions in which special emphasis would be laid on the protection of women and children. New measures were identified to fight sexual violence in armed conflict situations, such as the appointment of a Special Representative and the deployment of a team of experts in the use of sexual violence in armed conflicts.

UNSCR 1889
It was adopted in 2009 and urged for taking further measures to improve women’s participation during all stages of peace processes. It called on the UN bodies and the Member States to collect data on, analyze and systematically assess the particular needs of women in post-conflict situations.
UNSCR 1960

It was adopted in 2010 and envisaged a system of accountability to stop sexual violence in conflicts. In accordance with the Resolution, it was requested to draw up lists of perpetrators and annual reports on the parties that were credibly suspected of committing or being responsible for acts of sexual violence. The Resolution pointed out the need for strategic, coordinated and timely collection of information for the UN Security Council and for keeping it seized of sexual violence in conflicts, urging States to undertake specific commitments bound by time limits to resolve the issue.

UNSCR 2106

It was adopted in 2013 and added further operational details to the earlier resolutions on WPS issues, reiterating that all parties, including not only the UN Security Council and the parties to armed conflicts but also all UN Member States and bodies, had to make further efforts to implement the existing mandates and to fight the impunity for crimes relating to sexual violence in conflict situations.

UNSCR 2122

It was adopted in 2013 and specified gender equality and the empowerment of women as critical to the efforts to maintain international peace and security. It recognized that the economic empowerment of women greatly contributed to the post-conflict stabilization of societies. The Resolution provided for a roadmap to develop and establish technical expertise in UN peacekeeping missions and mediation teams supporting peace negotiations, to improve the access to up-to-date information, and to analyze the impact of conflicts on women and women’s participation in conflict resolution.

UNSCR 2242

It was adopted on the occasion of the 15th anniversary and the High Level Review of UNSCR 1325 and focused on the WPS agenda as a cross-cutting subject in the challenges of the changing global context of peace and security, in particular relating to rising violent extremism, the increased numbers of refugees and internally displaced persons, and the global impact of climate change and health pandemics. It is the only UNSCR recognizing these dramatic changes.

UNSCR 2467

It was adopted in 2019 and recognized the importance of addressing the root causes of sexual violence, for which responsibility should be undertaken by UN Member States. The Resolution recognized the need for a survivor-centered approach covering women with children born as a result of sexual violence in conflict and surviving men and boys. It urged Member States to provide more opportunities for access to justice for victims.
UNSCR 2493
It was adopted in 2019 and strengthened the existing legal framework of women, peace and security, emphasizing the role of regional and sub-regional organizations in the implementation of the WPS agenda.

UNSCR 2272 and 2331
Furthermore, two UNSC resolutions were adopted on that subject-matter in 2016: UNSCR 2272 on sexual exploitation and abuse and UNSCR 2331 on the trafficking in persons in areas affected by conflict contribute to the commitments of the international community to WPS issues.

Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women

The UN General Assembly adopted the Convention in 1979. A total of 187 States parties have ratified it and are bound by its principles. The States parties are expected to submit a national report to the UN Secretary General to monitor the implementation efforts. Some provisions of the Convention are in line with the WPS agenda, including:

- Ensuring women’s participation in the decision-making process at all levels;
- Condemnation of violence against women;
- Achieving gender equality through the rule of law;
- Protection of women and girls against gender-based violence;
- Assurance that the experience, needs and prospects of women are included in the political, legal and social decisions on the attainment of just and lasting peace.

General Recommendation No. 30 of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women

CEDAW General Recommendation No. 30 on women in conflict prevention, conflict and post-conflict situations (before, during and after conflicts) was adopted in October 2013. It states clearly that the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women applies before, during and after conflicts. At the same time, it addresses some key issues facing women in conflict situations, including gender-based violence, challenges in the access to justice and education, employment and health. The General Recommendation reiterates the link with the Convention to the Women, Peace and Security agenda. They together make up the framework ensuring that gender equality becomes integral part of conflict prevention, peace building, and post-conflict reconstruction.
Transforming Our World: the 2030 UN Agenda for Sustainable Development

In September 2015, the UN Member States adopted the comprehensive 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development including 17 goals with the overarching motto “Leave no one behind”. The cross-cutting issues of human rights, gender equality, combating violence against women and the empowerment of women are widely reflected in the global Sustainable Development Goals. (Goal 5 – Gender Equality, Goal 16 – Peace, Justice and Strong Institutions). Equal opportunities for women and men are important for achieving progress in education, high technologies, human security, overcoming inequalities, fighting climate change and others.

The international community recognizes gender equality as the major driver of the efforts to achieve all Sustainable Development Goals. It is essential to poverty eradication, conflict prevention and the overall building of lasting peace.

Being an EU and UN Member State, the Republic of Bulgaria is committed to the efforts to develop multilateralism as an approach to achieve sustainable development, peace, stability, protection of human rights, and to fight climate change.

In this context, Bulgaria is making efforts to take active part in and contribute to the support and funding of projects and actions in the field of development cooperation and humanitarian aid related to overcoming violence against women and girls and achieving gender equality:

- Economic, social and political empowerment of women and girls and their protection in unstable and conflict situations;
- Elimination of all forms of gender-based violence;
- Work in the field of the sexual and reproductive health and rights;
- Ensuring access to food, water, health services and education for women and girls;
- Provision of post-conflict reconstruction services, and others.
EU policy framework on the issues relating to the WPS agenda

The EU policy framework on the issues relating to the WPS agenda is based on: Global Strategy for the European Union’s Foreign and Security Policy which sets out the fundamental interests and principles of undertaking commitments and presents a vision on more credible, accountable and responsive EU in the world; the EU strategic approach to women, peace and security; the EU Action Plan on Women, Peace and Security 2019 – 2024; the EU Gender Action Plan 2016 - 2020 (GAPII); the Strategic Approach to Resilience in the EU’s External Action, the Concept on Strengthening EU Mediation and Dialogue Capacities, and other documents.

NATO commitments on the issues relating to the WPS agenda

The implementation of the UNSC resolutions on women, peace and security (1325, 1820, 1888, 1889, 1960, 2106, 2122 and 2422) is an integral part of the Alliance’s values to protect individual freedom, democracy and human rights. At the 2010 Lisbon Summit, NATO adopted its first Women, Peace and Security Action Plan which is subject to review every two years. The policies to promote equality, participation and protection of women underlie the three main tasks of the Alliance: collective defence, crisis management, and security through cooperation. The empowerment of women and their equal participation in peace-building and security processes are widely reflected in the NATO partnership policy and in the Science for Peace and Security Programme. In 2019, the Alliance adopted its Policy for Preventing and Responding to Sexual Exploitation and Abuse. The Secretary General’s Special Representative for Women, Peace and Security and the Civil Society Advisory Panel comprised of representatives of NGOs and academia provide their active contribution to keeping WPS issues high on the NATO agenda.

Together with the package of UNSC resolutions on women, peace and security and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (General Recommendation No. 30), they provide detailed roadmap for substantial transformation of societies in view of achieving sustainable peace and security.
Women, Peace and Security National Action Plan

The Republic of Bulgaria is a co-sponsor of UNSCR 1325 and recognizes the priority of the issues relating to women’s equality in all spheres of public, political, economic and social life, including the participation and leadership of women in the efforts at both national and international level to prevent and resolve conflicts, and to build and strengthen international peace and security.

The 2020 – 2025 NAP is a clear political sign of our commitment to the attainment of the national priorities in the field of gender equality. The NAP is in line with Bulgaria’s active policy in the human rights field, in particular the rights of women and girls, and it contributes to the efforts at national level to empower women and to ensure their active and leading role in peace and security matters.

The NAP identifies as important components the development assistance and humanitarian aid which Bulgaria provides within the framework of the development assistance policy, taking into account the good cooperation between all institutions involved in this field.

In the course of the NAP drafting, consultations were held with and Ireland’s experience was used as exemplar since Ireland is among the leading countries in the implementation of the WPS agenda.

Consultative Working Group

On the basis of the shared Irish experience and expertise and with a view to achieving broad outreach and support to the policies relating to the WPS agenda, a Consultative Working Group was established in 2019. Led by the MFA, the Working Group is comprised of experts from all competent government institutions and representatives of the relevant nongovernmental organizations, as well as independent academic experts.

The discussion took place on 2 October 2019.
The National Action Plan is structured around four pillars:

1. Prevention
2. Participation
3. Protection
4. Prioritization

These pillars are interrelated and interdependent, outlining the targets that the Republic of Bulgaria will strive to achieve over the period from 2020 to 2025. They cover the output indicators to measure the implementation of the actions on a short, medium, and long-term basis.

The expected outputs relate to the attainment of gender equality, empowerment of women and their more active role in conflict prevention and resolution processes and in the strengthening and maintenance of peace.

The NAP sets out the timeframes for the implementation of the planned activities and their funding.

The timeframes for the implementation of the planned actions are determined by the relevant institutions, bodies, and organizations. Their funding is in line with the budget allocations for this purpose.

The NAP highlights coordination and cooperation among the competent institutions in the implementation of this Plan. The progress review process will start in the second half of 2022 and will be conducted by a special working group established for this purpose.
Pillar 1. Prevention

The NAP incorporates the issues of the Women, Peace and Security agenda into some fundamental strategic documents relating to gender equality by means of:

- Interaction with the National Strategy for Promotion of Gender Equality and the related National Action Plan;
- Interaction with the Annual National Programme for Prevention and Protection against Domestic Violence;
- Interaction with the Annual National Programme for Prevention of Violence and Abuse of Children;
- Raising public awareness of the WPS agenda with focus on gender equality;
- Strengthening gender equality principles in peace and security processes;
- Combating hate speech against women and girls.

Pillar 2. Participation

The NAP envisages measures to promote and support the active and effective participation of women in all peace processes and their involvement in formal and informal decision-making at all levels, which are the guiding principles underlying attainment of sustainable peace and security. The NAP strives to remove the obstacles in order to ensure significant participation of women in these processes by means of:

- Updating the Women, Peace and Security Action Plan of the Ministry of Defence;
- Promoting gender equality in peace and security decision-making processes;
- Ensuring equal opportunities for women and men in their career development;
- Pursuing a policy of balanced gender representation in the structures of international and regional organizations;
- Interaction between the WPS agenda and the Youth, Peace and Security agenda;
- Capacity building and strengthening at national expert level;
- Capacity building and strengthening at international expert level.
Pillar 3. Protection

This section of the NAP specifies protection measures aimed at strengthening the efforts to ensure the safety, physical or mental health, wellbeing, economic security and dignity of women and girls, to promote and protect women’s rights and to mainstream gender equality by means of:

- Raising public awareness about: the protection of the rights of women and girls during an armed conflict; post-conflict reconstruction processes; the prevention of all forms of violence against women and girls;
- Optimizing the funding and reporting of actions relating to gender equality in conflict-affected areas within the framework of development cooperation and humanitarian aid policy;
- Prioritizing the protection of women and girls in unstable and conflict-affected areas and the prevention and fight against all violations of women’s rights, including sexual exploitation and sexual and gender-based violence, within the framework of Bulgaria’s official development assistance;
- Reinforcing the commitments to prevent sexual exploitation and violence in emergency situations;
- Prioritizing the education of women and girls primarily in conflict-affected areas within the framework of Bulgaria’s ODA;
- Interaction with the National Strategy to Combat the Trafficking in Human Beings 2017-2021 and the Annual National Programme for Prevention and Counteraction of the Trafficking in Human Beings and Protection of Victims;

Pillar 4. Prioritization

The NAP includes actions relating to the contribution and participation of the Republic of Bulgaria in the policies and negotiation processes of the WPS agenda within the EU framework and also with regard to the country’s commitments within the framework of NATO, the UN, multilateral and regional initiatives, including those in the field of arms control, non-proliferation and disarmament:

- Prioritization of the topics included in the WPS agenda;
- Updating of education systems and training programmes;
- Support to bilateral, regional and international initiatives related to the WPS agenda.
